About the writer: Heather Reynolds is the wife of Calvary Chapel Austin worship pastor, David Reynolds. A worship leader in her own right, Heather has led worship at various retreats and conferences throughout the state of Texas. She began singing and playing guitar as a teenager and was the front person and co-songwriter for a hard rock Christian group for many years. Then, God placed a call in her heart to lead and write praise and worship songs.

About the song: Heather had just finished a Christian book which encouraged believers to live above the level of mediocrity and soar like an eagle. While leading worship at a retreat, she caught a glimpse of an eagle and sensed the Lord leading her to write a song about it. She knew the Lord was telling her that it was time to stop living a life of mediocrity, that she was called to live on a higher plane. This song was written to inspire and remind us that those who put their hope and trust in the Lord can soar as the eagle.
