Speakers

Terry & Christy Michaels

Terry Michaels serves as senior pastor at Calvary Chapel of the Springs in San Marcos which began in October of 1997. His vision for the church includes youth outreach, evangelism, discipleship, and missions work.

Christy leads the women's ministry for Calvary Chapel of the Springs. Terry and Christy married in 1980 and have two daughters, Carly and Chelsea.

Andy & Lynn Neillie

Andy and Lynn have been married for over 23 years. According to Andy, he is one of those "lucky guys who married way over his head," and admits that "the secret to a long marriage has been to keep her so totally confused she still hasn't figured out what she got herself into!"

They have ministered to numerous couples speaking at various marriage conferences. They are both Training Consultants for the Richardson Company, where they work with Fortune 100 firms to maximize sales and management effectiveness. Andy has a Doctorate of Divinity from Phoenix Seminary, where he taught in the area of personal spiritual development and ethics.

They live in Austin with their 12-year-old daughter, Drew.

Enjoying the Difference

God's word reveals that we are "fearfully and wonderfully made." We are carefully crafted and uniquely created. That we know and acknowledge. We celebrate that with unrelenting vigor. But what about celebrating the uniqueness of the other person God created . . . our spouse? Well, that's a different story altogether.

The differences which drew us together, often pull us apart. With time, uniqueness becomes unbearable. Adoring traits become objectionable. We've traded contentment for contention. And the "aahhh's" have been replaced with the "uughh's." Our adoration and appreciation for our spouse gives way to something less edifying. Instead of delighting in our differences, we simply grin and bear it.

"Variety," as the saying goes, "is the spice of life." Perhaps the statement is easier said than actually applied.

Come and join us, where together we will rediscover the art of appreciation for one another's uniqueness as God intends and truly learn to...enjoy the difference.
